Well I'm a little over halfway through this book, guess I'm taking my time and savoring it. So far my favorite chapters have been A Week On Middle Creek and A Week at Long Cabin With Johnnie. Sometimes I think I was born in the wrong time period, I'd love to go back and experience the PA mountains when they were still unspoiled.

His descriptions capture the look and feel of Penns Woods better than anything I've ever read. Not just the way things were then, but the way things still are now in the forested areas of PA.

Are you forgetting all the gas wells that dot the landscape now?
