Good stuff.

I definitely get more greens and RBs since I mostly fish streams. As I've said many times, I like the RBs for a host of reasons. This year, however, I'm seeing mostly greenies in my local creeks as well as a recent trip to the Potomac. Also seeing a lot of big ones too.

(Big by green sunfish standards - we're talking over 5" 😊).

Seems like a banner year around here for greenies.

The good news regarding RBs is that I witnessed large numbers of them spawning last month in the lower Juniata River where many folks feel that RBs are gone or greatly reduced.
