It has kind of been reversed for me Dave. I have caught a whole lot more RBs this year than last year. Greenies have been harder to come by for some reason and the ones I have caught were all on the small side. The Pumpkinseeds have been an unexpected treat this season. I always thought of their habitat primarily as lakes. However, I have gotten into a few on a stream with some scattered pockets of heavy weedbeds. If you look in the background of the pumpkinseed picture you can see one if these weedy areas. They seem to like to hang around the edges of these areas if not right in the weeds.
