Looks like I'm in trouble now.

In all fairness to da Fox, his soaking was due to yet another epic faceplant - all in the name of field testing his new waders. They worked much better when not submerged upside down.

To be completely honest it wasn't a faceplant either. It was me trying to get to a fishable spot where the knucklehead fishing from the wall on the other bank wasn't fishing and I just went a little too deep!

And I do know DD wasn't there that day, so hmmmmmmmmmmmm, I wonder who gave him that picture!
