October is a tough month - so much to do and so little time.

In recent years, I mostly fish in the fall now.

I used to be an avid hunter and traditional archer but have drifted away from hunting in the last decade. I still buy a hunting license every year, but the last couple years I didn't get an archery stamp as I have for thirty years. For eating, wild game and venison appeal to me, but my enthusiasm for killing animals has faded. I still have my gear and treestand and reserve the right to return to hunting. Oftentimes, when I see the leaves change I still feel an itch to go sit in a tree.....but these days the call of trout streams, bass rivers, and the ocean have kept me busy in the fall.
