

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Opinions on a rod(Cabela's TLR, plus diff. wts and lengths)

Re: Opinions on a rod(Cabela's TLR, plus diff. wts and lengths)

Author: : Big-Bass

Date: : 2013/7/24 23:50:34

URL:

I actually owned the TLR 10' 7 weight this past winter but returned it thinking i already had too much gear...and now am kicking myself in the butt for doing so. They are a very nice olive green matte blank with good hardware for the price. There are a lot of people who love the switch rods but if you are fishing NY, I would get the 11' 8 weight if you were also going to use it for salmon. In PA, the 1007 or the 1106 would work well. For the price, they are a great rod. Now you got me thinking I should reorder one! Get a prestige premier reel or rls+ to match it and you would be set!