I've been fishing the LL for years and have never seen even a minimum of vegetation, I wonder where you guys used to see it. The LL has always been a silty slow moving stream, and the problems of the stream are not solely due to expanded development. Much of what we see now is a result of the parks people putting in "stream improvements" that don't work as intended.

Not to mention that for years, until recently they mowed the banks and removed all the vegetation holding the soil there.
