Hi Snakeman - SBecker pretty much nailed what I was trying to say about the 30 minute drive down the turnpike thing.

I think the extra few minutes of travel time would be well worth it to you. There's gonna be at least three casting instructors in attendance - that alone would be worth the trip for you, IMO.

The instruction we're giving for free dealing with flyfishing would cost you several hundred dollars if you tried to get instruction from a shop, and you could wind up with the same instructors - depending on where you went. 🤔

You'd also have an opportunity to hook up with people that would be willing to help you in the future. It'd be the perfect setting to get your feet wet, so to speak.

By all means, try to make it if you can.
