This is going to sound ridiculous but has anyone ever brought a fly rod onto a charter boat?

I'm headed out on a 125" charter boat tomorrow morning, and plan to get the back of the boat. If I can get the back left corner, I should be able to get a few casts in with the fly rod if its isn't packed. I'm going to bring it along with the spinning gear and scope things out, but I don't want to piss anyone off. I just need to put my 10wt to use and what better way then to sling a few flies into a feeding frenzy of blues.

Anybody have any experience with this?
