Interesting - hope yuh see him again (or better yet, catch him). If you can get him and a good photo, I'd recommend notifying the local AFM (PFBC biologist) or Mike as this would be of interest to them.

As I've said before on this forum, my largest wild freestone brookie in over 30 years of fishing in PA is an 11 inch fish. However, fish of the size described here certainly are possible and (as we've also discussed) are mentioned frequently in historical writing.

I'd guess the fish is probably 5-6 years old. This is old for a brookie in this part of the country.
