

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : High Water Streamer Flies and Tactics

Re: High Water Streamer Flies and Tactics

Author: : fishngun

Date: : 2013/7/29 9:30:37

URL:

As stated above, focus on any current breaks you can find, even minor ones. As far as streamers go, you'll want something that will push some water. Bigger is better in real stained water. I would start with articulated flies that are around 4-7 inches in length. Color can change throughout the day, so have a light, dark, neutral, and bright. It can make a difference. As far as tactics, don't be gentle. Let the fish know there is something there. Make sure you change angles and retrieves until they tell you what they want. When you come tight on a fish, don't be gentle about the hook set. Sweep the rod and strip set.