After catching many hundreds of natives over the years, my biggest still remains at 13.5". I figured it was maybe a 6 or 7 year old trout? Well, yesterday I saw a native (positively identified) that was at least 16" and maybe as big as 18" in a deep pool on a Clinton county freestone stream. I have NEVER seen a native this big, and probably never will again! It really flipped me out. lol I'm wondering how old this native could be, any thoughts? Mike?

Okay, so you didn't catch the fish, and you know it's a native how? Brookies over 14 inches anywhere are extremely rare, and the only places I've seen brookies over 14 inch has been in limetsone streams. Just saying.
