

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Youghiogheny River, Fayette, Somerset Co. 7/27/2013

Re: Youghiogheny River, Fayette, Somerset Co. 7/27/2013

Author: : pwk5017

Date: : 2013/7/30 9:38:51

URL:

It would make sense that the colorful ones are eating a higher ratio of bugs in the broken water, where as the chrome ones are eating more baitfish in the pools. Curious observation either way. Now, I do not fish the yough very often, so I have by no means surveyed a sizable population. The ones I have caught are definitely unique fish though. Stout for their length, and extremely shiny.