If they're wild, it would be like coming accross a dinosaur in the modern era. A remnant of an older world, really. It would haunt me as well, Sal. Why not though? Maybe, just maybe, there is a chance that such dinosaurs still exist. They used to get that big in PA...is it possible that some "freaks" manage to consume enough food, find their way around water supplies that extend their growing season, and avoid predators long enough to reach such sizes? It IS haunting...
