The boat I went on (The Big Jamaica) is really adamant about stuff like that. Some guy caught a rock bass that was just about 3/4" off of the size limit and they made him toss it back. I've been going on that boat since I was a little kid, and my dad even longer, and it's always been a great experience.

I will say, I can only handle that crowd of people once a year. I have to get a nice buzz going before I can get used to "Bob" and his entire family casting across me, then getting pissed off because he's all tangled up.
