I realize the Susquehanna fish here is rather unique in coloration, exceptionally prominent yellow and dull reds. I picked it because you can sorta see the tail and dorsal at the same time, which seems to be a rarity in my pics (I usually squish the dorsal and let the tail hang for some reason). So my sample size for those two indicators is somewhat small.

Nonetheless, the middle of the side thing holds for every single picture I have from the two watersheds. Which is upwards of 30 photos from each.

Barred Dorsal

Yellow and red spots below middle of side.

Arcs on tail as prominent as edges.
