

---

Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Juniata River, Perry County?, 7/26 & 7/27/13

Re: Juniata River, Perry County?, 7/26 & 7/27/13

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2013/8/1 16:00:17

URL:

Quote:

glenrockonthefly wrote:

Hey all

So first off I am not sure what county I was in...so any help would be appreciated.

!

The section you floated starts in Juniata Co but crosses the border into Perry.

Nice report - glad you're a Juniata fan. It's long been my favorite bass river. Also, some good news on bass fishing in the lower Susky. There's still bass there too and if you mainly want to target big fish and don't mind working hard for 'em, they can still make for a good trip (although I rarely fish the lower Susky in the summer for bass anymore). Maybe I'll give the Susky a try this summer - would be nice to visit some of my old hotspots from the 1990s.

If you're an outdoorsman, Perry County is paradise! Very under-rated and filled with all sorts of beautiful country and outdoor options that so many folks miss as they drive up the highway to the supposedly better country up north.

Knock Perry all yuh want while you drive 2-3 more hours to Potter or the Poconos. I'll stay closer to home and have a mighty good time. 😊