uhhm, why exactly do you guys object to DCNR monitoring the pollution levels in the stream, any stream? Seems to me the PCB levels in the fish would be a pretty decent indicator of the overall health of the watershed? Imagine this has more to do with than just the trouts...

Wasn't going to say anything but glad you brought it up. I was thinking the same thing. It just can not be a bad thing that it's monitored. I would think it would be worse if they did not.
