Yeah, I got your PM - thanks.

With my goofy work schedule, I just separate work nights from non-work nights. Don't get too many nights off these days.

Good thing I like fishing the trico hatch!

The majority of browns in the LL are wild fish. There's always the possibility of a hatchery escapee though. They've improved on that at the hatchery, and as far as I know, don't dump fish into the stream like in years past with every high water event.
