How did you guys make out up there this weekend?

I floated each day, fri and sat down around narrowsburg and sunday i went north to check out the trout zone, floated from the buckingham access to Lordville. We had fun on the lower river but when i get back up there i am headed right for that area we floated Sunday, its awesome up there.

I didnt see any trout activity Sunday up north but we certainly saw them in the water as we floated. Saw some random sulfurs and small what i guess were the tiny blue wings you guys were referring to but nothing even remotely what would be considered fishable. The wind was honking all day anyway which would have made fly fishing very tough but it was really cool to get up there and check out the area. I'll be back before the cold weather hits you can bet on that. The best quality smallmouths we caught were up there too, ironically
