I can say i do totally agree, its not like a meadow stream, i catch them on the hopper from time to time on the j, like i said i had one rise to it but only one. Maybe its me but i just feel like a hopper in lower water is a good indicator compared to a thingamobobber or a yarn indicator. Thats the only reason i used the hopper to be honest, just for a good indicator to see from a distance that isnt unnatural looking. Ive really fallen head over heels for this river, its about an hour away from me and has become my favorite of the central PA streams i travel to.
