

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Donegal creek wild rainbow?

Re: Donegal creek wild rainbow?

Author: : Swattie87

Date: : 2013/8/6 14:00:12

URL:

Quote:

The_Sasquatch wrote:

Swattie, do you still have that picture of the bow Foxgap caught in northern Lanc. last October?

I think so. I've caught a few smallish seemingly wild Bows from wild Brown, (but Rainbow stocked) ATW's that looked similar to this fish. I know one in particular had a lot of color in the fins. I'll see what I can dig up tonight.

Another possibility is that this fish is the result of a Golden and a traditionally colored Bow spawning too. Not really a hybrid since Golden's are just a color variation of Rainbows, but kinda in a way I guess. The resulting fry would be somewhere in between the coloration of the parents.