Thanks again, everyone, for the advice.

I think I am going to wait for now to make a purchase, and save up some cash to get a more rugged boat. The main reason I was attracted to the boat in the original post was the price tag and the fact that I had $115 in Cabelas rewards. I am taking a trip to Colorado next month, so I am spending a good bit of my play money on that right now.

The Scadden Assault line looks really nice though. I was on the Yough on Saturday and couldn't help but think how nice a boat would have been to cover some water.

If anyone is doing a float trip any time soon, and has room or equipment for an extra, I'd love to tag along. I can buy a couple rounds afterwards at the very least.
