How do you explore new waters?

It's been awhile since I've visited the forum. I've since graduated college and found a job. My job has moved me down to Georgia about 20 miles north of Atlanta.

The problem with this is that I no longer know where the waters are to fish. I haven't been fishing in over a year!!! I joined an outdoor forum down here and asked a few guys about where to go. Unfortunately the answers are less than helpful.

My question to you is how do you find a new spot to fish? I've always had issues with this even in Pennsylvania when I lived there so I just spent all of my time on the water that I knew was legal and had fish.

I'm a shy person and don't understand social norms so it's hard for me to go to new places. I've been looking online for fishing places around Alpharetta but I can only find lakes and I'm more of a small stream guy.

So how do you guys recommend I find new water?
