Nice! I really like the shape that the craft fur gave the fly. I've tied another tub jig pattern that is effective.

Hook: any streamer hook

Thread: any thread match the color to the estaz

Tail: rubber legs

Body/head: Estaz

Eyes: red dumbbell eyes

Tie a bunch of rubber legs in as a tail. Keep the tail about the length of the hook shank. Tie in estaz at the tail like you would for a woolly bugger. Tie in eyes just back from the hook eye like you would for a clouser minnow. Wrap the estaz forward creating a body and around the dumbbell eyes and up to the hook eye for a head. Tie off and whip finish. Add a dab of head cement for durability. I tie these in white, olive, black, and chartreuse most often.
