

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : PennEnvironment

Re: PennEnvironment

Author: : franklin

Date: : 2013/8/9 10:20:19

URL:

It's interesting that on their site they have a section promoting wind and solar power and advocating for renewed credits for them. Following that is a section asking who pays for the costs of fracking. I would ask who pays the costs for subsidizing wind and solar?

BTW, read in interesting study showing that solar power actually contributes to global warming. In fact so does planting trees.