Pwk, in all honesty I have the exact same concerns you stated. As for now it'll probably be a low/slow twitchy retrieve I end up using...could pass for a crayfish? I suppose high sticking or even dropping it under an indi could keep that slack to a minimum, but honestly neither of these techniques sound like much fun (in the context of bass fishing at least).

If I can get out this weekend (and the river isn't blown), I'll give em a swim.
