Hi everyone, last weekend I broke another rod tip on my St Croix Imperial. The first one I'll take all the blame. I slammed it in the car door. But this one, I was snagged in a tree and barely pulled it as I moved around to reach up and grab it. I really was surprised when it snapped clean in half. So anyway, its $30 to replace it. $75 to transfer the warranty into my name. Or I could just move on.

I bought this 2nd hand trying to save a few dollars, and I'm getting really close to the point of having spent the same amount as a new one, with a warranty, would of been. I think its obvious I need something with a warranty as I am an abusive clumsy tip killer.

So should I try a 3rd time or give up and get something else now?
