Because of weather and high water I haven't been able to fish Tobyhanna creek for 2 Saturdays in a row. Last Saturday morning we had some thunder storms around me and this past Friday 2" of rain brought creeks up several times normal cfs. I did walk the Creek trail in Austin Blakeslee preserve down to the waterfall, looks like nice water.

I'm going to fish the DHALO section soon with someone. I may make a trip to Evening Hatch this week and if water levels are down enough I'm going to stop on the way back (I get on 80E from 115) and fish the preserve with buggers.
