

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : More work along the Loyalhanna

Re: More work along the Loyalhanna

Author: : foxfire

Date: : 2013/8/14 8:54:12

URL:

i fish this stream alot behind the retirement home down to behind the carwash usually...got skunked twice in the end of the july a few days after some heavy rain..the creek had a funny smell to it and a few more local fisherman told me that they think it may have been contaminated with something after the heavy rain does anyone know about this?

Didn't hear about the contamination??? The local land owners (which include me) were ordered off septic systems and forced at outrages cost to tap into the local sanitary systems to prevent such run-off issue. All and all a good thing, but very expensive, particularly for weekenders. The local heavy machinery operators just raped the home owners on the cost of digging the taps. Quite shameful to say the least.