You can take trout from any water that is not specially regulated between Opening Day of Trout Season until Labor Day. There is a statewide limit of 5 per day, I think. Special regulation streams are listed and often marked clearly at the waterway. Read the regs on them. After Labor Day, harvest is only permitted on Approved Trout Waters and any water downstream (meaning into which the ATW runs) and the limit is lower. There are also special regs trout waters that permit limited year-round harvest within certain parameters, too variable to list, at least for me.

For other species, check the statewide "Seasons, Sizes, and Creel Limits" section of the booklet mentioned or the website linked.
