That list of largest black bears is largest skulls. When I taught HS, I had a student who shot a 816 pounder, and it was the 3rd largest in PA that year. A worldwide top 20 list which goes down to 604 lbs is either highly flawed or is measuring something else. In this case, skull size, not animal weight.

On another note, agree with FD. People suck. Animals do not. I do not find the OP's encounter that alarming. Bear ran away and in no way threatened. Have had several such encounters myself, and my reaction is to be thrilled, not scared.
