I've owned a Creek Company toon for almost 10 years and it has held up very well. I will not use it on any river with more than class 2 rapids. I don't fish the Yough so I have no idea what you'd be dealing with, I fish mostly still waters and low flow Susquehanna North Branch which is pretty tame, I would NOT attempt the Lehigh.

I've biked it and actually backpacked it a couple times, no leaks and no problems.

Just wanted to add that their toons are very good quality, with limitations certainly but still very good, and they have parts for everything at reasonable prices.

I'm curious if krayfish ever owned a Creek Company toon and if so what his opinions were on them.
