After my first lost bigguns on the Letort due to 6x and 7x tippet, my success rate became even lower when I moved to 4x and 5x because I couldn't get the initial hit in the first place.

Personally I develop a plan. I spot the best places to try and fight him into. I recognize where and how the currents can help me, not him. I mark the places he will almost surely try and get to. Then I mark the best position to place myself for these factors, which usually isn't the most desirable one. Then it's time for the first cast, which normally is your only shot at getting a big one there.

Over the years I've got quite a collection of the big fish there in my album. But it's one of the hardest feats, if not the hardest, in flyfishing I've encountered. And only 3 that I can remember on dries.

Hey, you asked.
