

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Grand cayman...anybody been?

Re: Grand cayman...anybody been?

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2013/8/20 19:02:53

URL:

Some good advice from Sandfly and, as he points out, there are guides available.

A couple years ago during a family cruise I had a couple hours on the island and did a DIY bonefish trip. I had a cabbie deliver me to a flat (can't remember the beach) where, sure enough, I was able to find bonefish cruising and there were no other fishermen as far as I could see, which was about a mile. It was hard bottom and turtle grass so have some weedless flies. I got several shots but couldn't manage a hookup. The bones there are large and certainly wary. I think if I had more time to figure out the situation, I could have had landed a decent fish or three.