for all your RX anglers reading this - Just about any Optical Lab can provide a polarized lens in a variety of lens tints (colors), coatings etc.... I use my local Sams club - based on $$$. I wear a strong RX single vision lens for fishing. I used to only wear a polarized wrap style frame/lens but since my RX is very strong now it causes blur and distortion issues with most wrap style frames.

My local Sams Club optical has a variety of lens tints and coatings. I find their poly polarized brown lens is what I like best for river fishing and driving. It doesn't block as much visible light as their grey polarized lens so I can wear it all day from sun up until it's time to take them off. I have even had them make replacement poly polarized lenses for my favorite fishing frames. They have a good warranty and replacement policy.
