

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Targetting smallies amid sunfish

Re: Targetting smallies amid sunfish

Author: : wgmiller

Date: : 2013/8/26 12:07:08

URL:

Conversely, largemouth DO take notice of other fish being caught and the caught fish can become a target for the LM. If you can find largemouth, watch a hooked panfish really stir things up.

Couldn't agree more with increasing the size of your offering for smallies. Don't be afraid to tie up a big ol bugger in the 2/4 range and drop it on the bottom or dead drift it. That should help to keep a lot of the panfish off of it. Aggressive panfish are just a part of the game sometimes when fishing for other WW species. The topwater bite can be particularly frustrating at times.