

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Targetting smallies amid sunfish

Re: Targetting smallies amid sunfish

Author: : marcq

Date: : 2013/8/26 23:12:55

URL:

I don't fly fish much for smallies but when I do I strictly target areas where they are going to be eating. haha. but seriously I would say fish around structure. the fish that are cursing around are not really looking to feed. they stage up in places where it is easy for them to grab something.

if I had a situation where I saw fish in the open or a fallen tree or large rock in the water I would cast to the structure. you can bet those fish are looking to score a meal with the least amount of effort as possible. this is my over all theory with bass fishing. they are lazy fish.

buggers are a go to in my book. if you want to fish topwater find some pads or weeds. good luck getting them out.

for non fly fishing tip. 4 inch sinko is all you need. Texas or wacky rig