What has changed?

The water flow, I think, has seen some subtle shift a bit in the last several years and some sediment has filled in along the sides. It's still a good spot. I've been fishing that spot since I was a kid (landed my first 20" trout there) and I don't think it has changed all that dramatically..... but maybe I haven't noticed as the change has occurred slowly. Other folks on this forum have pointed out these changes and complained about them, so you're not alone in noticing this.
