Thanks for the input everyone. While I am rather new to fly fishing, I have luckily not lost anything moneywise as far as rods go. The ones I did return that I did not like I got credited for and the few that I did buy (with the exception of a TFO BVK which was new) were used/sold. In fact, when I sold the Scott on that auction site, I ended up getting alot more than I paid for it. I hope my posts don't come off as being annoying or repetitive as I am learning this sport. I have been learning alot from just reading on this site and continue to look forward to everyone's helpful input. Remember, I came from bass fishing where a $350 rod is top dollar for most brands and you could buy right off the rack knowing what action you were getting.

Some members on here are very annoying and repetitive.....but you not one of them 😊 (not that there's anything wrong with that)...they are welcome too. 🙄

Keep posting and asking for help, Big-Bass and keep helping when others ask whenever you can.
