I use one of the foam drying patches attached to my pack with Velcro. Replacement patches can be purchased and easily replaced as the old one gets totally chewed up. As I am fishing during an outing all flies that I used get placed on the patch to dry. They stay there until my next outing when I put them all back in their boxes before I start fishing the next time. Keeping them on my pack assures that I always have them all with me on the next trip. You can really extend the life of your flies and hooks by drying them properly.
