I've posted about this on here before - but my brother in-law owns a camp close to the yough river by confluence. And from talking to them - and other camp owners around his place - no one really seems to pay much attention to the didymo signs that are posted around the access areas. They seem to be just more fish commission info that no one really is interested in.

Just my take on things - from what I'm hearing around the yough river anyway.
