Was curious as to whether people wet wade this time of year in PA, or are waders the choice?

Sure, you can wet wade this time of year - many of us do it.

There's been a long running debate on this forum over whether it's safe and several posters have testified to infections or injuries they have rec'd when wet wading. Others (such as myself) continue to wet wade as we have for decades without any problems. Of course, if you have any open cuts or injuries, you'll want to wear waders.

I would suggest that if you do skip the waders, that you wear some sort of long pants as shoreline vegetation is very thick this time of year and can really give your bare legs a beating.
