i don't actually have one yet but I'm told that the waterproof packs made by a small company in Alaska called Sagebrush Dry Goods are hard to beat from a quality and waterproof perspective. check out <http://www.sagebrushdrygoods.com>

Most of fly fishing specific sling packs i have seen from the popular fly fishing industry vendors don't have waterproof zippers and can't be submerged without leaking. The exception might be Patagonia Stormfront Pack and Stormfront Hip Pack which are way over priced IMO.
