I don't see a need to use small tippet up there, but i generally use heavier tippet everywhere i fish. I stick between 2x-5x 95% of the time. Like all wild trout the fish in cedar and slate aren't super selective most of the time, but they can be very spooky. If you can sneak into pools with feeding trout undetected you should be fine with any tippet. Just be stealthy and don't false cast overtop of where you plan to fish.
