These guys pretty much said it all already but make sure you are using a dry fly hook. I use mustad c53s for my stimmys. Elk hair floats better than deer when you're just using the tips. And wrap you hackle a little denser. Finishing the heads is a little tricky because everything wants to slide towards the eye. In the riffle.com has a video of an easy trick that helped me for the head. You basically just leave the thread back from the eye where you start your head hackle and wrap the hackle against the thread and it gives you just enough tension so it doesn't slip.
