

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Ever fish a Paraleptophlebia guttata hatch?

Re: Ever fish a Paraleptophlebia guttata hatch?

Author: : redietz

Date: : 2013/9/8 0:51:16

URL:

Quote:

BradFromPotter wrote:

The hatch starts around the end of June & can go for 12 weeks.

I couldn't say for sure, because to me one paraleps is pretty much the same as any other, but troutnut.com says:

Quote:

Paraleptophlebia mollis, Paraleptophlebia guttata, and Paraleptophlebia strigula complement each other in late spring and early summer.

Paraleptophlebia debilis and Paraleptophlebia praepedita occur together in the fall.

I'm not saying you're wrong, though.