

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Action recommendations for a short, smallwater rod

Re: Action recommendations for a short, smallwater rod

Author: : Six-Gun

Date: : 2013/9/10 9:47:37

URL:

I was strongly considering the Avid during this selection process, but in the end, I am really glad I went with the Imperial if for no other reason than its castability. My goodness, this thing is versatile. I can really stretch the legs on that 7-footer and sacrifice some presentation/delicacy for distance, but it's also very capable of soft, subtle line landings for spooky fish. I took it out to Utah with me this past weekend and it really, really shined. I highly recommend it if you need a smallwater rod that can let you sneak through heavy brush while still preserving the ability to cast futher out on open water sections.