For flies I would say have your basic genetic nymphs. HE,PT. when I'm fishing this time a year I'm mostly using midges. Zebra midges are always a good producer. When it gets colder I start using eggs and worm patterns as well. Hatches that will be around are caddis and BWO.

I personally never have fished the Lehigh but spend a lot of time on the LL this summer. Not positive if the fish will be spawning by then but I know it's in the fall. Kinda the reason why fishing tapers off. At least for me. By oct and nov I'm focused on stripers. It's prime time to hit the surf.
