Per the LL there are some good guys here who have a ton of knowledge, much more than I BUT I'll give it a shot and these guys can correct me if I F-up ... as long as we haven't seen any frost I believe I was told (and someone feel free to correct me if I'm wrong) that the Tricos still hatch in the AM. BWO also hatch I'm just not sure when.

Not sure what dry's to use but you should nymph all the regulars, WB and also try some zebra midges. The entire LL, from the Hatchery down has fish and many of the guys have their favorite spots ... me I'm just happy if I catch a fish or 2 (lol) ... good luck and thanks for ur service.
